

A career in the oil and gas industry

Field Supervisor S/holder Engagement

The purpose of this role is the establishment and maintenance of strong working relationships with key stakeholders

Your responsibilities and key objectives will be:

- Building productive and meaningful relationships with Tullow's key stakeholders within operational areas, including surrounding communities.
- Managing all grassroots stakeholder engagement activities.
- Leading and managing a team of Community Liaison Officers
- Supporting the delivery of Tullow's Social Investment programmes.

You should have a degree in humanities, or social science

You will need:

- At least five years experience in community relations.
- Experience working with extractive industries or major infrastructure projects
- Experience in delivering social investment programmes within remote environments
- Good knowledge of local community customs and traditions
- Excellent oral and written communication skills.